boulee

Twenty-eight-year-old Debbie Moradzadeh literally designs from the comfort of her own bed: "I keep a pen and pad by me at night because I often come up with what I want to make right before I go to sleep," she says. The Beverly Hills native, who launched her line Boulee last year, says she aims to create "something for every mood," which explains her wildly diverse array of silhouettes ($180 to $500), from seductive, curve-hugging one-sleeved dresses to billowy, everyday-stylish blouses. Our favorites include a sexy, universally flattering dress with ruffled sleeves and a loose-fitting cowlneck top that you could elegantly streamline with a belt. Available at Switch (238 S. Beverly Dr., 310-860-1650).
